

Why Trump Is Routing the Free Traders

Pat,

Trump, without a doubt, is resonating with the working class of this country. However that working class is slowly vanishing. Build it here in America by American workers for the American People sounds great as a slogan but needs to be backed up with skilled workers. Today's American workers rather work for computers than have computers work for them. The information age that was supposed to elevate society to new highs was a God sent to the upper class but was the working class's demise. Technology, so prevalent in our society, has become our God and Secularism our bible. So caught up in this maze of secularism are the working class, that if asked to march out, they would search the same secular system looking for the path. What we really need is a "War on Unskilled Workers". It would not take Trillions to do it, it would only take the Will of the People's Government in Washington. An excellent start would be to replace Colleges taught by Socialist with Trade Schools taught by retired skilled workers that have actually built something.
