Can Europe Survive This Invasion?

Where are the migraters migrating from? Are they, for the most part, coming from Muslim countries? And where are they going to? Is it for the most part, Christian countries? One has to wonder why are they not going to Saudi Arabia or Egypt or Jordan or making camps in the Sinai Desert. Are not for the most part Christian countries, by Muslims own words, filled with infidels? History tells us that the Crusaders of the 12th and 13th century invaded the Muslin Holy Lands with the purpose of repelling them from invading the new Europe by either defeating them or converting them to Christianity. For the most part, the latter part of the Crusader's objective failed. So here they come, again. Why? Well they like the Christian messages of: Love, Compassion, Taking care of the Poor, Tolerance, Charity, Freedom, and Inclusion and, unlike the Christian Crusaders of the past, no one will try to convert them. So come they will. Assimilation, absolutely not. Why should they? After all, in their minds, we have the weakness of Christianity as dictated by our own God of the New Testament and we must accept them. However we, as Christian nations, may be full of Love, Compassion, Tolerance, Charitable Giving, Haveners of Freedom, and Accepters of all. BUT WAIT! We don't have to be stupid about this thing. These people refused to accept our Christian values in the 12th and 13th century and they still refuse to accept them in the 21st century. So, let the migraters migrate back to their own people and if their own people won't accept them, cut out all aid and trade to those countries until they do. What's the problem with that? History tells us, that's the way infidels should behave.
